The Canadian Institute for the Administration of Justice (CIAJ) in collaboration with PwC Canada, host a series of discussions that leverage the learnings of the past and explore the future. This is the third webinar of the Justice Forward series. In this webinar, we will be examining the importance of well-being, taking a more trauma-informed, human-centric approach to support legal and justice professionals and participants. From Justice to Juror, Crown to Court Security Officer – building a culture of well-being at the core of the court and within justice organizations can reduce trauma and enable a sharper focus on achieving just outcomes. What you will learn from this session:

- What a trauma-informed approach in such cases could look like
- The increasing importance of wellness in the courts to support participants and professionals
- How this approach can be achieved in order to create a healthier justice system and experience for all those involved

MODERATOR

- Tamara Cherry, Former Crime journalist, CTV News Toronto; Founder, Pickup Communications

SPEAKERS

- Roxane Martel-Perron, Senior Manager, Public Safety, Defense & Justice, PwC Canada; Criminologist / Violence and Violent Extremism / Prevention. U.S. Department of State's Combatting Hate IVLP
- Mark Farrant, Chief Executive Officer & President; Canadian Juries Commission
- The Honourable Justice John B. McMahon, Superior Court of Justice (Ontario)
